

A vibrant orange daisy flower is the central focus, its petals radiating from a bright yellow center. The flower is held in a clear, textured glass vase that is partially submerged in a cascading waterfall. The water is dark and turbulent, creating a sense of movement and freshness. The background is a dark, rocky surface, which makes the bright colors of the flower and the clarity of the glass stand out. The overall composition is dynamic and visually appealing, with a strong contrast between the natural elements and the man-made vase.

Exodus 23:25 And ye shall serve the LORD your God, and he shall bless thy bread, and thy water; and I will take sickness away from the midst of thee.